

PRESIDENT ACCORDED GREAT RECEPTION IN TWIN CITIES

Makes Three Speeches in His Ten Hours Stay, All Being Well Received

Is Now in the Dakotas, Where He Will Make One Speech at Bismarck, N. D.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Aboard the President's train approaching Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 10—President Wilson left the big cities of the northwest behind today and struck into North Dakota with increased confidence.

He was greatly pleased with the demonstration at St. Paul last night in favor of quick ratification of the peace treaty and the league.

At the close of the president's speech in St. Paul Mayor Hodgson of St. Paul asked those of the 15,000 listeners who were in accordance with the president's view to say "aye." A tremendous shout went up. He then called for "nays." There were a few scattered replies.

The president's only speech today is at Bismarck where he will arrive at 11 A. M. The stop is two hours and then on to Billings, Mont., into the country of the I. W. W.'s to tell them the treaty should be ratified to still world-wide economic affairs.

The three speeches within ten hours delivered in the twin cities were the most encouraging he has had so far on his tour the president said. The people in the twin cities did not hesitate to make a noise.

North Dakota is the territory of Senator McCumber in favor of the league. The other, Senator Gronna, is generally believed to be against it.

The president appeared much interested in the vast wheat territory through which the train carried him. He was always ready to meet the people. As the little groups were gathered at the small stations he almost always stepped out on the rear platform to give them a flourish of his hands as the station dwindled away in the distance.

The president is understood to be getting ready for strong efforts at Couer d'Alene, Idaho, the home state of Senator Borah, one of the most bitter enemies of the league of nations as it is set forth in the peace treaty. He will reach Idaho Friday.

Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 10—President Wilson declared here today that the question before America in its consideration of the peace treaty is flatly peace or war.

He spoke in the Auditorium, a theatre building which was filled, but it could not hold more than one thousand people. "Failure of the peace treaty and league of nations will bring on a despair that will cause a chaos. Men in despair will destroy government," he warned.

There were many western figures in the crowd and there were a number of Sioux Indians clad in native garb and blankets, and others wore white colors and looked natty.

When the president said America was founded to lead the world to liberty, a loud cheer went up and another came when he said America was certain to enter the league of nations.

America's delay is injuring all the world the president declared.

"The war is over but there is no peace." The president urged against separating the league from the peace treaty, declaring the treaty will not work without the league.

Wisconsin Guards Called Out to Quell Strike Riots

Madison, Wis., Sept. 10—Three more state guard companies were today ordered to Two Rivers by the adjutant general to quell the strike disorder involving two thousand workers. Yesterday the Sheboygan troops were sent to the scene. Today companies from Appleton, Green Bay and Neenah were called out.

SENATOR JOHNSON LAMBASTS WILSON

Casts Back the Term of "Contemptible Quitter" to the President in His Actions

BY FRED S. FERGUSON, (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

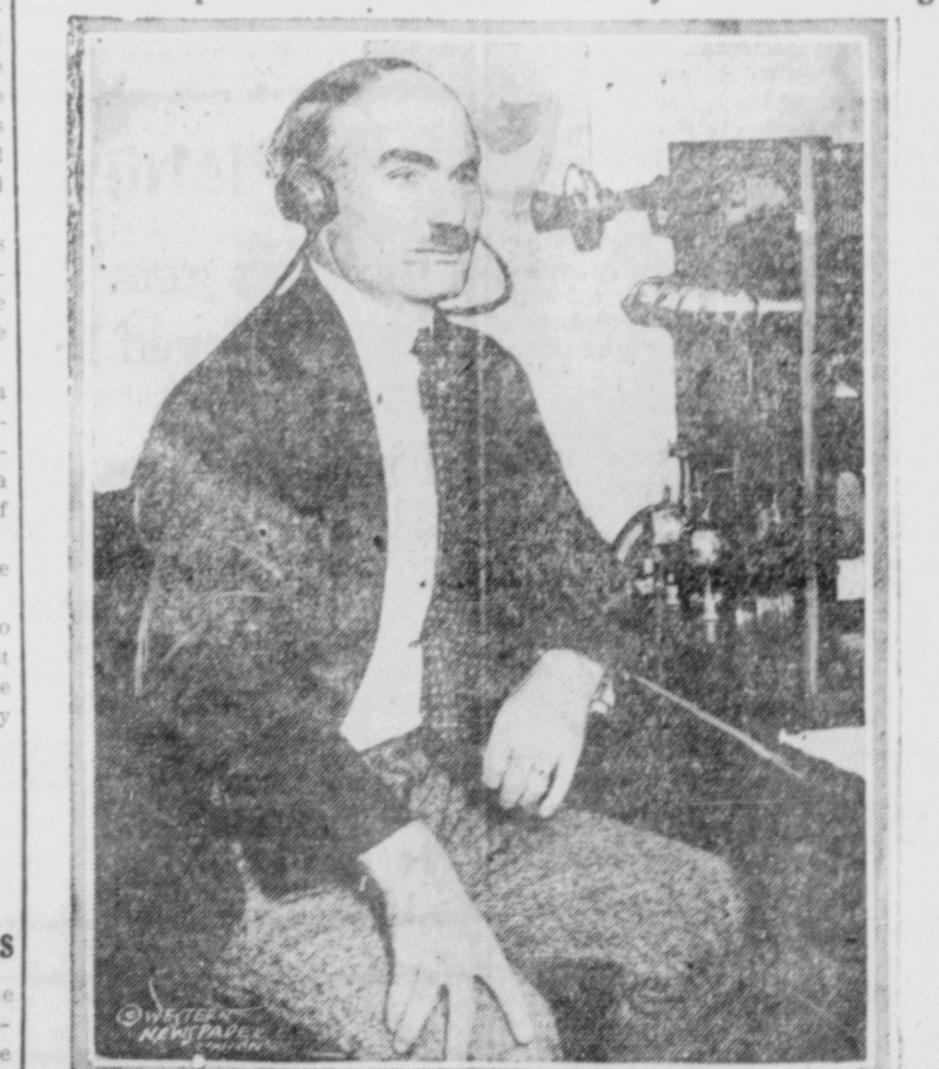

Chicago, Sept. 10—The term "quitter" was cast back to President Wilson today by Senator Johnson in a brilliant speech before the Hamilton group here. The California senator asked to what game the president referred in his St. Louis address. Senator Johnson did not apply the direct epithet, as he commented on President Wilson's reference to the opposing senators as "contemptible quitters" if they do not see the game through, but he declared, "To what game does Mr. Wilson refer? Is it the game he started to play in Europe and did not finish, or is it the game that was played for him in which he acquiesced? Is it the American game that he so finely played when he went to Europe, or is it the European and Asiatic game?"

"American people are not quitters. They helped destroy ruthless militarism and did not quit until they won the job. Mr. Wilson commenced his job in Paris and his game was for certain definite objects, certain specific plans and in playing this game, the American people are ready to back him up and play through no matter what it costs."

Senator Johnson then mentioned the president's demands of "open covenants openly arrived at," adequate guarantees, that armaments be reduced, impartial adjustments of all colonial claims, self determination, no league or alliances or special conferences within the one family of the league, and other demands that have been abandoned, and declared it was not the American people who had quit.

"And thus it was that the game was played in Paris and the game was of the sinister, cynical European and Asiatic diplomacy in which American people neither have a part or want a part. This today is the game of which Mr. Wilson speaks, and this today is the game which Mr. Wilson plays, and all of you are not playing it with him."

Boston Police Go Out on Strike

Looting of Shops, Disorder and Rioting Results Before Voluntary Police Restore Order

Boston, Sept. 10—Following a night of riot, disorder and lawlessness in which mobs of men, women and boys looted scores of shops after practically all of the police force went on a strike, order is being restored. Rioting at some points broke out after ten o'clock today, when mobs attacked the voluntary police. Many were taken prisoners. Up to noon 150 men and boys had been arrested, fifty of these were charged with looting. The loss of the looting is estimated at $500,000 by the city officials.

Boston, Sept. 10—The entire 4th Brigade of the state guard, including cavalry, machine gun company, motor corps and infantry, was rushed this afternoon to protect Boston from further outbreaks in rioting and lawlessness following the strike of police. The rioting broke out in Seaport Square shortly after 1:30 this afternoon. Great crowds were reported moving towards the downtown business section. There was much fighting. At 1:45 the emergency call was sounded for military troops.

BILL WOULD BAR TOWNLEY PARTY FROM PRIMARY

Two Measures Introduced to Provide Bonus for Minnesota Soldiers

St. Paul, Sept. 9—The rapid introduction of nine bills marked the resumption of the senate session following the close of President Wilson's speech to the joint gathering.

The house military affairs committee says its bill for soldier relief carries twelve millions of dollars. A bill by a coterie of members carries $18,000,000 and allows $25 for each month of service by any man with dependents, and $15 a month for each soldier without dependents.

Senator Guilford of Hennepin broke the primary reform ice with a measure which compels a voter participating in a primary to indicate his party affiliation. If such a bill becomes law, a democrat would be barred from going into a republican primary at the next primary and similarly a republican would have to keep out of a democrat primary. It is the hope of the friends of the bill that it would work to keep Nonpartisan league party voters out of republican or democratic primaries. Townley says his organization is a league, not a party.

The newest Besette bill appropriates funds for the construction and maintenance of telephone lines for the forest service.

Naplin of Pennington put in a bill creating a state general relief fund and levying a tax for its maintenance.

In the house there is an impression that a strong fight will be made to pass Representative Warner's bill authorizing the board of control to fix standards for coal sold at retail and finding dealers who sell coal below grade.

Governor Burquist's recommendation for a state budget officer to be identified with the executive department has been shelved by the house and in its place that body passed the Christianson-Nolan bill creating a budget commission composed of certain high state officers. Such a bill was passed by the house in the winter but the senate let it die.

Tonnage Tax Bill Before Legislature

Bendixen and Welch Introduce the Measures; Hit Minnesota Producers of Iron

St. Paul, Sept. 9—When Governor Burnquist called this special session of the legislature, northern Minnesota confessed at once that it meant a second tonnage tax fight within a year. The vote on the ancient issue will come in the house Friday afternoon, when it will be taken up as a special order. It will be on so-called Bendixen bill identical with his measure of the regular session except that he now exacts a 5 per cent impost instead of 4 per cent, on the net value of the ore.

Defeated by Close Vote. The Redwood legislator came within ten votes of going to bat with this bill today. He moved to suspend the rules and pass his measure out of hand. He needed 88 votes to suspend, and he got 78. There were 46 votes against his motion. Then he moved his special order for Friday and 95 members supported the motion, 25 opposing.

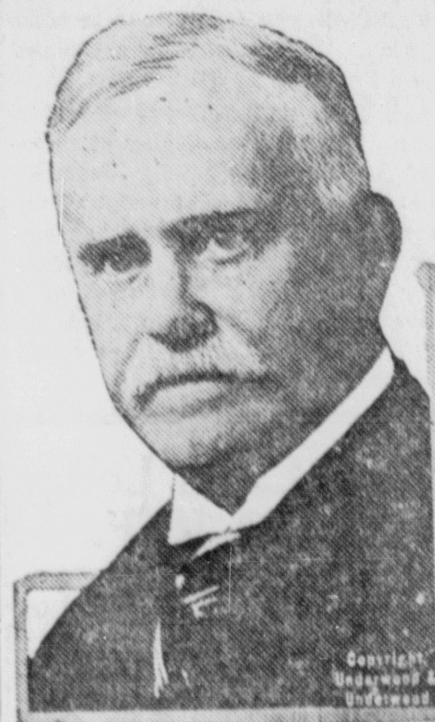

Welch of McLeod another tonnage tax proponent of the regular session, again brought forward his ideas on behalf of the Nonpartisan league. He proposes a 19 per cent tax on the net value of the ore. The tax committee will consider his bill.

It was the Welch bill, not the Bendixen or Wilkinson bill, that the house refused to pass at the regular session. It fell shy but two votes.

Difficult Proposition

The Bendixen measure is brought on, free of league antecedents, admittedly destructive legislation though it is. Representative Murphy of St. Louis, who has led the house opponents of tonnage tax bills in two bitter fights, is in most difficult position. He has not had opportunity to organize against the drive on the tonnage taxers. He has but two full days for preparation, at best it's a gloomy outlook for the iron region of Minnesota. It will not be surprising if it has to pin its faith to the senate to block the bill the Aurora legislator is striving against. Even at that no senator can give any guarantee for what the upper house may do if it gets the Bendixen bill.

These twenty-five thousand young crusaders, whose brothers gave their lives in the world war, tramped through masses of people amidst resounding cheers. At their head rode General Pershing.

Attorney Charged by Committee

St. Paul, Sept. 10—Charging F. C. Cary, a Minneapolis attorney, and judge advocate general of the Minnesota Motor Corps, with collecting sums from $1,000 to $2,500 for widows and dependents of home guard and motor corps guard members, the senate finance committee was authorized to make thorough investigation. Senator Rockne, of Zambrotta, chairman of the finance committee, introduced a resolution reciting that such complaints had been received by the committee, and that they should be investigated. The hearing will be held Friday at 4 P. M. at the capitol.

Senate Committee Reports Peace Treaty

It Sharply Criticizes the President For Refusing the Committee Information

By L. C. MARTIN (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Sept. 10—Accompanied by a six page report, containing a sharp and bitter phrase directed at President Wilson, the peace treaty today was submitted to the senate by the foreign relations committee.

The report was filed by Senator Lodge and represented the views of a majority of the committee. A minority report will be filed by Senator Hitchcock. Half of the report is taken up with a defense of the committee's work and criticism of President Wilson's answers to the arguments in condemnation of the league covenant as a breeder of war.

The remainder deals with the textual amendments and the league reservations adopted by the committee.

The report also points out that other nations beside this have not ratified the treaty. Criticizing the president because the committee lacked information, the report declared the responsibility of the senate in regard to this treaty is "equal to that of the executive" and in addition declared that the committee was hampered by the impossibility of securing information to which they were entitled.

In meeting the argument to delay trade relations with Germany, the report cites export figures to show that this trade has been going on since the armistice was signed. The claim that the adoption of amendments would involve the reassembling of the peace conference the report says, is "groundless."

The Ceremony Was Held at St. Germain France at 10 O'clock, Ending at Eleven

By HENRY WOOD (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Paris, Sept. 10—The Allies have made formal peace with Austria. Karl Renner, Austrian chancellor, signed the peace treaty at St. Germain at 10:15 this morning. No speeches were made by the Austrian delegation. Premier Clemenceau on behalf of the allies invited the Austrians to sign in the same terse fashion he had employed at Versailles before the Germans.

Chancellor Renner was the first delegate to sign. He was followed by Henry White, General Bliss and Frank L. Polk of the American delegation.

Aside from the peace treaty the Austrians made two agreements, one by which they will undertake to indicate the allied ships lost during the war which were sunk by Austria, and another which obliges them to furnish within a month a list of persons responsible for the war that the allies may place them on trial.

The ceremony of fixing the signatures ended at 11:10. French guards presented arms as the Austrians made exit after signing. Rumania and Jugo-Slavs were to be given three days in which to sign the treaty.

GOSSIP CENTERS ON PALMER

Attorney General Just Now Occupies a Strategic Position—Old Politicians Wonder if Bryan Intends to Seek the Nomination Again.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—Washington is awaiting with interest the political effects of President Wilson's tour through the country. His first speech was delivered in Columbus, O. Opinion in its rebound from that state is being caught by the politicians, for Ohio holds within her borders two candidates for the presidency—Warren G. Harding, Republican, and James M. Cox, Democrat.

Politicians here, and especially those of them who have presidential ambitions, are wondering just how the winds of league favor or disfavor are to blow from the people after the president has completed his trip. The wonder is if some of the politically ambitious are to trim their sails so as to go smoothly with the wind or, because they think the atmospheric conditions have set the breezes blowing wrong, will attempt to beat "up wind."

At least four or five Democratic candidates known to be in receptive mood are hanging on the president's utterances day by day as he goes through the country, hoping that somewhere a cheering word for their individual ambitions may be let fall. To these gentlemen the president's utterances on the league will be matters of secondary importance because all of them have espoused his views on the matter. The thing of prime importance to them will be some possible word from the chief executive which will indicate that he is strongly in favor of some specific national doctrine for which one or the other of them may have taken a stand.

Gossip Turns to Palmer.

One still hears more from the politicians in Washington, so far as the Democratic nomination is concerned, of the aspirations or supposed aspirations of Champ Clark and William G. McAdoo than of those of other prominent Democrats. Today, however, the trend of the talk in the cloakrooms and elsewhere is turning to some extent to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination. Mr. Palmer today is in something of a strategic position, for his work is intimately connected with the attempts to bring down the high cost of living, a subject which is pretty close to the hearts of all people who do not happen to be millionaires.

The Democrats also have taken cognizance of a recent pronouncement of William Jennings Bryan. Some of the old politicians are wondering if Mr. Bryan will try it again. He always has managed to hold on to the affections of a strong following. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, said something a little bit cryptic the other day. The interpreters of his utterance think that possibly it means Mr. Daniels is in a receptive mood.

Attitude of Republican Senators.

Some of the Republican senators seem to have approved, temporarily at least, the ambitions of one of their number who, it is known, would like much to be president of the United States. There are some rather cold political analysts of conditions who say the Republican senators' attitude in this matter is assumed for present purposes only, and that later they will part company one with another to take positions behind what is called the heart candidate of each one of them. This may be or may not be true, but such a condition is not at all unprecedented, for this kind of thing has been recognized for years as being a part of the political game.

In the more or less sequestered places of the capital one hears many things about the probable issues of the next presidential campaign. Various things are spoken of but the words usually wind their way around various subjects until they come back to the great questions which have arisen between labor and capital in recent months. Both Democrats and Republicans say great effort must be made to bring about an adjustment through the executive and the legislative branches which will make for stability. The matters involved are delicate in their nature and politicians speak of them in a way gingerly, though they admit that timidity finally must be thrown to the winds and that some fixed policy must be decided upon and every effort made to give it the force of law.

There are men here who see in some quarters a marked tendency toward something which bears a resemblance to soviet government. The leaders of the two parties are taking this thing seriously into consideration. In the past, both parties have approached certain subjects with great caution. Today there seems to be a disposition on the part of some of the leaders of both parties to urge that certain things be handled with bare knuckles, and sovietism, so-called, is one of them.

LEGISLATORS AFTER HIGH LIVING COST

Five Bills With This Object in View
Introduced in the Special Session

St. Paul, Sept. 10. (United Press)—Five bills intended to remedy the high cost of living were introduced into the house today. All appeared to be aimed at control of packers and store warehouses. Probably the most drastic was that presented by Wicker of Casson, and Wilkinson of Lake Elmo, which would license and regulate warehouses where any food was kept, and restaurants would have to label food sold out of cold storage.

The senate today adopted a resolution providing for $10,000 for senate expenses. In all thirty-six bills were received in the senate. Twenty-four bills were introduced in the house. The bill to establish a state department of commerce to regulate prices was laid over for consideration at a joint committee meeting of the house and senate members.

MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE VOTES TO ADJOURN ON SEPTEMBER 19TH

The 1919 extra session of the Minnesota legislature will adjourn Friday, Sept. 19, at 12 noon. Both houses of the legislature adopted by overwhelming vote today a resolution prepared by the rules committee fixing the day of adjournment. The last day for passing bills will be Thursday, Sept. 18.

There will be no lid on the legislative program during the two weeks of its work. Instead of limiting the subjects to be considered, the senate and house leaders decided to limit the time, which will mean working at high pressure to get all the results possible in 10 days.

First Safety Bicycles.

The first of the safety bicycles was put on the market in 1880. In this the high front wheel was reduced and the rear wheel was about two-thirds the height of the front one. The machines with wheels of the same size appeared in 1885. Bicycling began to be popular about 1891, and the "craze" reached its height about 1895, when wheels had become low enough in price to be within the means of the multitude.

An eccentric Englishman, Daniel Day Good, is accredited with the invention of pork and beans. The first Friday in each July he would assemble a party of friends under an oak in the forest and feast them on bacon and beans. From this festival grew the popularity of the dish.

The American embassy in Mexico City reported this today.

DEMAND END OF SEX INEQUALITY

Women in Industry Determined to Have Equal Pay for Equal Work.

OLD ARGUMENT A FALLACY

Idea That Men Should Have Higher Wages Because They Have Dependents Is Exploded—Investigation of Conditions Going On.

Standards for the employment of women in industry, as formulated by the women in industry service of the United States department of labor, eliminate all discrimination on account of sex. The tendency throughout the country, as noted by Miss Mary Anderson, assistant director of the service, is to make these standards operative, not only on the initiative of the women, but of the employers.

"Scarcity of labor during the war caused women to be paid higher wages than they ever received before," Miss Anderson commented, "and this gave them a taste of higher standards of living, which they are not willing to see lowered in peace. War wages for women also were more nearly equal to wages for men than employers had paid before, and this has been a stimulus to industrial equality. Many employers, we find, admit the justice of equal wages for equal work, after a frank discussion of the proposition."

One of the arguments advanced for paying men more than women, Miss Anderson said, is the familiar one that men have dependents to support. It has been found during investigation by the service, that women in industry almost as frequently as men have dependents and consequently wages for women are recommended that will cover the cost of living for these dependents and not merely for the individual.

Wherever the system of collective bargaining is adopted in industry the service maintains that women should have representation in the industrial boards or councils in proportion to their numbers. This system is specifically recommended by the service as a means to promote better working conditions and to assure the employer more efficient production.

Other standards recommended for women are the eight-hour day with Saturday half holiday, one day of rest in seven, no night work between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m., provisions for rest periods and sufficient time for eating meals, no work to be done in rooms for living, supervision so far as practicable by woman executives, and approved safety and sanitary arrangements.

Investigation of the wages and working conditions of women in the traction industry is now being made in New York city and later on will be made in Boston, Mass., and Chicago, Ill., and other cities.

State Sets Minimum Wage Rate.

A minimum wage rate of 22 cents an hour for all female or experienced minor employees over 17 years old in the state has been ordered by the industrial commission of Wisconsin.

The commission also divides female and minor employees into district wage-earning classes whose minimum wage is as follows:

Minor employees under 18 years of age, 18 cents an hour; between 16 and 17 years, 20 cents an hour; beginners, first three months, 18 cents an hour; second three months, 20 cents an hour.

Children working under permit are to have a minimum wage scale of not less than 18 cents an hour, and if with more than three months' experience, the commission finds that the scale of wages shall be at the rate of 20 cents an hour.

Children producing the same output as more experienced employees are to be paid at the minimum rate of the experienced class.

Railroads Releasing Women.

Steady reduction in the number of women employed by railroads is taking place as the result of demobilization and the return of men to their old jobs. From a high mark of 101,785 woman employees October 1, 1918, the number had decreased 14.3 per cent by April 1, when 85,393 still were on the pay rolls. The drop was greatest in the East, 17.7 per cent of the women employed there being released, as compared with 6.5 per cent in the South and 11.4 in the West.

The first women to be let go were those engaged in heavy work in round-houses and shops. In the clerical occupations, such as ticket selling, where 72 per cent of the women were used, small reduction has taken place, 68-129 still being employed, many of whom likely will remain with the railroads permanently.

British Government Condemned.

The British government is called upon to make a definite pledge to reduce the cost of living or to resign, in a resolution passed by the national executive committee of the Labor party. The resolution declared the government had failed to prevent "merciless exploitation" of the public by profiteers, who are charged with taking "ruthless" advantage of the shortage in supplies and transport.

HIS DISCOVERY

By JACK LAWTON.

Torrents of rain caught Brant in his car at the loneliest point of the road. He had hoped to reach his hotel before the clouds burst. Now, he decided to abandon the rain-soaked runabout and seek shelter in the old vacated house glimpsed through surrounding trees. He made a dash for it and was rewarded by dry space on the veranda.

Through a French window he could see a low-ceilinged room. He put his hand to the window sash and it slipped upward at his touch.

Ensconced in the reclining chair, he lit a cigar, drew a newspaper from his pocket, and proceeded to make the best of the situation. The storm not relenting in force, the busy man of affairs lay and dreamed as he was not permitted to dream in the life which hurried. And the dream carried him back to boyhood days to a low-ceilinged room with firelight flickering against its panels, a room peopled with those who were gone.

He remembered, too, a youthful dream, of a woman to be, who should fill his mother's place and make for him the sort of home his father knew.

Hotel apartments satisfied his home need, or he had thought the want satisfied, until storm clouds had driven him to this haven, and the enforced inaction in the silent room brought back to him strangely his memories.

He decided to remain longer. Time could not make the situation worse, it might make it better. So he folded his paper and lighted a second cigar, musing over a brief article he had read concerning a set of desperate poachers who were supposed to be located somewhere in this vicinity. Their secret place of residence was said to be stacked with stolen spoils. Sheriff and troopers had been unsuccessful in their capture, and the amazing thing about it all was the fact that their reconnoitering scout was a woman. An innocent appearing girl, the article said, "entirely allying suspicion."

Brant thought he would like to meet this girl; he thought that he would enjoy a part in bringing the creature to justice. And as he reflected, a seeming panel in the wall slipped back before his eyes and in the reflected light from a further room he saw a girl framed in the opening.

The first thing that he noticed about the girl was that she deliberately aimed a revolver in his direction, and the second thing was her rare beauty. The startling part of the adventure to him was the fact that the girl was remarkably like the woman of his dreams, like the ideal woman in his picture of home. The woman pointed a revolver now at his heart.

"I had made up my mind to ask you to go quickly," she said, "but it may be safer to keep you here, you might come back again at a time when I am not prepared. There is a windowless closet at your right; step in there directly, please, so that I may lock the door."

He was, in her eyes, of course, an agent to bring her companions to justice. As he looked again into the girl's purposeful eyes, Brant considered it best to pretend prompt obedience to her command. If, in some way he might outwit her, he would be able to find the solution of the difficulty.

After that one glance he was, strangely enough, not eager to bring the girl to punishment. She was, he reflected, savagely, but a tool in the hands of the desperadoes who dominated her. Then with sudden daring Brant rushed across the floor in the darkness and caught the girl off guard, dashing the pistol from her nerveless hand. Firmly he held her in his arms, until in the flickering light from the farther room he saw terror gather and grow in her eyes, then with a low, sobbing breath, the girl fainted against his own fast throbbing heart.

When he carried her through the door panel into the lighted room he found there a sort of compact living apartment, kitchen utensils, an oil stove, a dresser, a cot bed. And near the widest window some half finished sketches, paint brushes close by. The lovely girl at last opened her trembling eyelids.

"I know," she breathed, "you are one of those horrible poachers—hidden near here. I read it in the paper. I got out my revolver when I saw you come through the window. Then I thought I'd better take the advantage. But I've never fired—a revolver—and I was afraid. I'm not as brave as I thought—if you still go away—quickly. I'll promise—not to give information."

"Great Scott!" cried Brant. "I'm not a poacher—girl. I'm the man who owns this house—used to live here when I was a kid. Can't bear to sell the old place, always hoping to have it fixed up some day—for my home. But how did you happen to be here?" he paused perplexedly.

"Why," murmured the lovely girl, the color came flooding back to her face, "I am the poacher, I guess, after all. You see, I had put a little tent near by so that I might sketch the garden. The vacant house seemed so much more secure I thought it wouldn't matter if I moved in for a few days. My sister drives out to spend the nights with me. I can fancy home pictures of that big room of yours," she said.

And Brant's eyes looking down upon her softened with the light of his discovery.

"So can I," he said gently; "so can I."

ADVERTISING

In a sense the present high tide of advertising is evidence that the world has achieved a larger measure of democracy. Where monarchy is absolute, advertising languishes. There is then no need to argue with the populace from billboards, street-car cards, and printed pages. Tell them what to do, and they do it. Announce that the emperor eats such and such corn meal or prunes, and the announcement is enough. But where the people rule, the people must be sold; and the more they rule the more the methods of salesmanship increase and flourish. Those who find themselves irked by the process of being forever appealed to may discover some crumb of comfort in the assurance that there will be no advertising in heaven. For advertising, which is, after all, only a department of education, will have done its perfect work. "And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor," says the prophecy. On every subject everyone will think and know alike. Until that perfect day arrives, however, the probabilities are that we shall see more and more advertising rather than less.

THE PEACE TREATY

If President Wilson were more frankly truthful in his statements about the treaty, they would have more effect. He creates the impression that the senate is seeking to defeat the treaty, when as a matter of fact there is no opposition to treaty at all. True, all deplore the inclusion of the provision by which China is deprived of one of her best provinces, for which Mr. Wilson alone is responsible, but they would not reject the treaty on that account, hoping that the public sentiment of the world will cause Japan to restore to China her purloined province, as she has promised.

What opposition there is, is to the league of nations, covenant, and the senate seeks not even to reject that, but to clarify the language so that there will be no question but that the Monroe doctrine will be preserved, that purely domestic questions will not have to be submitted to the determination of other nations, and that withdrawal from the league is possible on two years notice.

Mr. Wilson says the league covenant now provides for all these. If that is true he should have no objection to having it so stated in language about which there could be no dispute.

PLAIN QUESTIONS TO BRAINERD PEOPLE

Every Brainerd Reader Will Admit the Soundness of the Logic

Would Brainerd people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they do if the medicine were not reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years have elapsed if their experiences did not show the remedy to be deserving of it? Statements like the following must carry conviction to the mind of every reader:

Wm. Bourquin, carpenter, 913 7th St., Brainerd, says: "Some time ago I was suffering from kidney and bladder complaint. The kidney secretions were too frequent. I had backache and pains through my sides. The trouble kept me from my work and gave me much annoyance. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and soon secured relief from the trouble. Now the aches and pains are gone." (Statement given October 23, 1913.)

On November 3, 1917, Mr. Bourquin said: "Colds sometimes disorder my kidneys but I can rely on Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve me. I have the same good words for Doan's as when I previously endorsed them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Bourquin had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Assistants to the state's attorney declared evidence had been obtained that would result in the indictment of at least twenty members of the gang, when the case is given to the grand jury next week.

While the plans of the band, according to authorities, called for the floating of more than $1,000,000 of worthless securities, according to authorities, only a small amount was realized because the scheme was checked before it was matured.

Paderewski Again Insures His Hands

(By United Press)

London (By Mail).—Ignace Jan Paderewski has re-insured his fingers. This news should interest politicians as well as music lovers.

Paderewski made it understood when he became Polish prime minister that he had renounced for ever his public performances as a pianist; but immediately after signing the treaty of Versailles he went to one of the big insurance companies and renewed the contract which insures his little fingers against all risks and injury.

This fact has only just leaked out and should serve to remind politicians that the status of a premier is liable to change, while music-lovers will realize that such a change in Paderewski's case might lead to a reappearance of the virtuoso on the concert platform.

Three Nations Race For Air Prizes

(By United Press)

Bournemouth, Eng., Sept. 10.—Nine British, French and Italian seaplanes faced the starter here today when the international over-sea race for the Jacques Schneider trophy and a $5,000 prize was resumed after an interval of five years. The last contest was held at Monte Carlo in April, 1914, when Howard Pixton, on a Sopwith seaplane won the trophy for Great Britain.

Modern advances in seaplane construction have led to alteration of the conditions of the contest, which is now held over a course of 200 nautical miles. The course selected by the Royal Aero Club embraces Bournemouth, Swanage and Christ Church. Each country is entitled to three entries, the British fliers being supplied by the Sopwith Aviation Company, the Avro Company, and the Supermarine Aviation Company.

Labor Party May Control Britain

(By United Press)

London (By Mail).—With the rumblings of approaching dissolution shaking the Coalition government, and recent developments in the industrial world, all eyes are turned on the Labor Party in the House of Commons and the question "How long before a Labor Government is in power?" which would have been laughed at ten years ago, is asked seriously.

For labor alone of the political parties sounds better than ever before, and political experts declare that labor can never expect to find itself in a more favorable position, politically. The Coalition is doomed, but neither of the old parties, Liberal and Conservatives, can go back to their pre-war status. Many of the leaders have been modified or abandoned, and the breaking up of the coalition would leave them shivering like the babes in the wood, uncertain which way to turn, or who to look to.

Labor is not absolutely united in parliament, there being several groups, known as the Labor Party, the Independent Labor Party, the miners' representatives, and numerous free lances like Colonel John Ward, the "navy" M. P., who was promoted to the command of a battalion in the war, C. B. Stanton, one-time miners' agent, Commander J. H. Wedgwood, one-time Liberal, and Jack Jones, the "Common People's Member" from east London.

The Independent Labor Party contains the intellectuals like Philip Snowden, Ramsay MacDonald, Sidney Webb and other regular socialists but for the purposes of a labor government they would unite with the larger group. And in the two groups there are many good men, who would doubtless make excellent statesmen, and who would have the support of people ordinarily bitterly hostile to labor.

There are George N. Barnes, cabinet minister, who fathered the Labor Government of the peace treaty; G. H. Roberts, food controller, in the present government; Stephen Walsh, at present holding a minor government post; William Bruce, Vernon Harcourt, Will Thorne, James O'Grady, J. H. Thomas, railwayman's leader, William Adamson, the official leader of the Labor Party, Robert Smilie, president of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain.

Of these Smilie stands out most prominently, from the vigorous part he has taken in the settling of post-war labor problems, and he is probably the most powerful man in the labor world today. Whether he or any of the others have the makings of a premier remains to be seen but they have a fine chance just now to formulate a smashing, reasoned program, and secure the spoils of office.

It is practically certain that labor, today, could defeat both of the old political parties working independently, and the proposed center party, a combination of the two could not be certain of securing a majority over the united ranks of parliamentary labor. The formation of a new party is always a source of strength to its opponents, for secession is inevitable and in the uncertainty labor would undoubtedly gain many recruits.

The main problem for labor to solve is whether the extremists are to prevail. At the last election the extremists were roughly treated at the polls but while there has been the inevitable reaction since the signing of peace, their policy is not popular. If the moderates like Adamson, Bruce, Barnes, Thomas and Roberts can retain control a labor cabinet is not only possible but extremely probable.

FIRST TO PARADE IN THE CAPITAL

WASHINGTON WILL SEE FAMOUS DIVISION OF REGULARS LED BY GENERAL PERSHING.

IT HAS A SPLENDID RECORD

Was First in Action at Seicheprey, and Later It Earned the Grateful Affection of the People of France—Generals Who Will March.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
 Washington.—Congress in joint session is about to honor Gen. John J. Pershing. Already the bill making him a general for life has been signed by the president. He has been nominated, and has been confirmed by the senate. It is probable that congress will give him its thanks, and present him with a sword as a further evidence of its recognition of his services.

There is to be in a few days a parade of the First division of the A. E. F. in this city. It will be headed by General Pershing, who while not the direct commander of the division, commanded the army of which it formed a part. Washington has had no great parade of troops like unto that of May, 1865, when the armies of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan marched up the broad avenue in review before the president and the commanding generals, and took two days to complete the march.

There have been several small parades recently of returned soldiers in the town. The one in which the First division will appear will be greater than any of its predecessors. Washington was made so war-weary that it never has responded enthusiastically to soldiers' homecomings. The war-torn veterans have marched through streets lined with apathetic crowds. It is hoped that the parade about to take place will reverse the rule of former occasions. The press and the managers of the parade have done all that they could to arouse the citizens to a sense of their "cheering duty."

The president of the United States will not be here to review the parade. His place will be taken by the vice president, who will have on the reviewing stand with him the secretaries of war and the navy and other cabinet officers and quite a number of prominent citizens.

Fine Record of the First.

There is a reason for specially honoring the First division. It was the first large contingent of American troops to be dispatched to France, where it went in June, 1917, under the command of Maj. Gen. William L. Sibert, who trained the division for six months in France, prepared it for the front line offensive and took it into its first fight. Later General Sibert was recalled to the United States to become the chief of the chemical warfare service.

Other major generals who at various times either commanded or served with the First division are: Robert L. Bullard, W. S. McNair, E. E. Ely, F. W. Cox, J. W. McAndrews, Charles P. Sumnerall, Frank Parker and E. F. McClachlin. All of these major generals will have part in the parade.

It was a part of the First division which engaged in the first warfare on behalf of America, as an American fighting unit under American command. The first American blood of the war was spilled at Seicheprey, and it came from the veins of soldiers of the First division. Seicheprey always will be a name and a place memorable in American history.

The little town, or what is left of it, is situated at the edge of the St. Michael salient. An American contingent was occupying the outlying trench when the Germans intent on making a coup raided in the early hours of the day. They killed some Americans and took some others prisoners, but they paid toll in doing it and later full revenge was taken by other members of the division.

Beloved by the French.

The First division fought all through the war, and it occupies a place in the hearts of the French people from which it never can be dislodged. The sentiment of the French for the First regulars is felt not only because it was the first American fighting unit to arrive in France, but because also of its sterling fighting qualities displayed on many fields.

It is probable, however, that in the hearts of the French the Third American division will hold a place a trifle higher than that of the First, for the reason that it was the Third division which threw back the Germans a little more than a year ago when they had succeeded for the second time during the war in gaining a foothold south of the Marne.

It is believed that the march of the First division in Washington will be the last great parade of the soldiers who took part in the war, which this town will see. In a way, it will be the closing line of the great epic poem of American action. Many members of the First have re-enlisted in the United States army. Men who three years ago did not know how to make an "about face" properly are today veterans of the greatest war in history and competent to be soldier instructors of others.

There are said to be 25,000 establishments manufacturing various kinds of beverages in Japan. Of this number 500 are located in Tokyo.

Nuxated Iron Helps Make Red Blood

The Kind That Puts Roses into the Cheeks of Women and Force, Strength, and Courage into the Veins of Men

Watch the People You Meet on the Street—You Can Tell Those Who Have Plenty of Iron in Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks

Sworn Statement of the Composition of the FORMULA of Nuxated Iron

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, former United States Senator and Vice-President, Charles A. Jones, of Minnesota; U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, Hon. Anthony Campbell; Judge Ashburn of the United States Court of Appeals at Washington; Wm. L. Chambers, Commissioner of the United States Board of Medicine and Comptroller at Washington, and former Health Commissioner Wm. H. Rorr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices as that they may inspire only correct opinions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the sworn statement will be sent by return mail to anyone who desires one. It is as follows: Iron, Potassium, Sodium, Calcium, Magnesium, U. S. P. (Monomethyl), P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P., Guarana, Bitum, Magnesia Carbonata, Ph. Glycer U. S. P., Oil Cacao Cinnamon Pepp. U. S. P., Calcium Carbonate French, U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron sulphate, of a special specific standard, which is our official standard superior quality to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of iron phosphate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using materials from we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-third the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycophosphates used in Nuxated Iron are one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of men.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron from Potassium and Glycophosphates are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to substitution and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is being warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Dan Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

"Nuxated Iron" is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not irritate the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in cases of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In cases of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists.

Sold in this city by H. P. Dunn and all good Druggists.

"BRAINERD DAY" AT COUNTY FAIR

To be on Thursday, Sept. 11, With Brainerd Municipal Band Playing Concert Program

GULL LAKE ROAD IMPROVED

"Brainerd Day" Replete With Horse Races, Aeroplane Flights, Baseball Game, Etc.

"Brainerd Day" at the Crow Wing county fair at Pequot is on Thursday, Sept. 11 and will be made a notable occasion by the presence of the famous Brainerd Municipal band which won laurels at St. Paul last Sunday.

Director Richard H. Rehl has arranged a program which will be a revelation to people of the northern end of the county who may not have heard the band for some time.

An instance of the care exercised by county fair officials in arranging for the fair is in their having the county engineer patch up the Gull Lake highway where needed, thus making the road in fine shape for the drive from Brainerd to Pequot, which some enthusiasts say can be made in 50 minutes.

The fair promises to be the biggest ever held in Crow Wing county with exhibits galore of the very best, with a fine offering of horse races and sensational airplane flights, baseball games, etc., in fact there will be something doing all the time, and no one an afford to miss "Brainerd Day."

The first day of the fair was Wednesday. Thursday is "Brainerd Day." Friday is the closing day.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORIES OF TODAY

When "Dutch" Strout was preparing for the "world's" series with Stillwater, he seemed to have everything lined up except one thing and that is revealed down at Cincinnati, where nothing has been lost sight of to gain the pennant.

Down there Rev. Frederick N. McMullin, of the South Mills Presbyterian church, was formerly third base on the University of Wooster team in 1894 and still occasionally practices with the Reds. On Tuesday Rev. McMullin asked all loyal fans to join in a prayer for a pennant for the Reds. To that end he has written a prayer in which the Lord is asked to grant "speed, control and deceptive curves to the pitcher, frequent and timely hits to the batters; blessings to give Moran manager, and good health and safety from accident to all the players." Had Brainerd been provided with all of that prayer, especially frequent and timely hits, Stillwater would have been humbled in the dust.

ROADS FACE COAL CRISIS

Dock Workers' Strike Menaces Rail Operations

Operation of Northwest railroads is seriously endangered by the strike of dock workers at the Head of the Lakes, which has virtually halted distribution of coal, it was admitted here yesterday by railroad officials.

The tie-up of coal dock operations already has forced the railroads to draw on their fuel reserves and these are rapidly dwindling, it was stated.

The Omaha, Northern Pacific and Great Northern situations are typical. Each of these roads has a coal reserve sufficient only for about a month longer, it was said. The two Hill lines have coal fields in the West and in Canada, but the supplies here are used for the St. Paul divisions.

It is declared that inability to draw from the Head of the Lakes will make it extremely difficult to keep the lines operating long, for the task of distributing the limited supply from the other sources over the big systems is a tremendous one.

The Omaha reserve is 60,000 tons, the Northern Pacific has 90,000 tons at Northtown and the Great Northern has about 100,000 in the Twin Cities.

It was stated that the reason the car shortage is not especially felt by St. Paul shippers is that box cars not fit for grain, but normally used for coal, are being used for market since there is virtually no coal to haul.

ARMY SUPPLIES SLOW ON DELIVERY

Goods Were Ordered Aug. 20 and 21 at the Brainerd Post-office

INTENDED TO REDUCE H. C. OF L.

Chicago Zone Station is Swamped With Orders in that Territory

When Brainerd people flocked to the Brainerd postoffice and purchased liberally of army supplies on sale by the government and intended to hit Old Man High Cost of Living a solar plexus, a feeling of joy surged through all veins at getting good groceries at cheap prices.

Since August 20 and 21 when orders were taken and money and parcel postage paid in advance nothing further has been heard from the government. A statement at the post-office was to the effect that the government was swamped with orders at the Chicago supply station for this zone.

Many people bought for immediate use and have waited patiently 20 days and received no goods.

According to Superintendent L. T. Stewart of Chicago goods ordered in August were to be delivered during the week commencing Sept. 7.

Miners Meet to Press Demands

(By United Press)

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 10—Representing approximately half a million coal miners, two thousand delegates of the United Mine Workers of America came to Cleveland yesterday to formulate a wage scale to be presented to mine operators.

It was expected that they would adopt the report of the policy committee which met at Indianapolis several months ago and decided to ask for:

- A six hour day.
- A five day week.
- A substantial increase in wages.

Nationalization of the mining industry will be advocated in a resolution prepared for submission to the convention. This action was urged by the policy committee and it was considered likely a copy of the resolution will be forwarded to congress.

Numerous other resolutions, prepared weeks before the Convention came to order, were to be presented. The nature of these will not be divulged until they are introduced at which time they will be referred to the committees.

John L. Lewis, acting president of the Mine Workers, was to pick up the gavel in Grey's armory here and provide over the twenty-seventh biennial convention of the organization. Lewis is acting during the absence of Frank J. Hayes, who is on a four months leave from the president's chair recovering from a nervous breakdown.

Committees were to be appointed today by Lewis and resolutions and other matters were to be referred to them. The scale committee is considered one of the most important inasmuch as it either adopts or rejects the report of the policy committee, usually adopting it.

Deliberations of the scale committee likely will continue for two weeks or more, with the report to be submitted and receive action of the convention upon its completion.

Blames War Shock in Murder Defense

Gold Beach, Ore., Sept. 10—A hero of Vimy Ridge, George D. Chenoweth, is facing fire again—from the battery of legal talent commanded by C. H. Buffington, prosecuting attorney for Curry county.

Whether the world-war veteran will escape unscathed from the present battle, depends upon a jury which will decide if he is guilty of murdering George Sydnam.

The legal battle, at which his freedom for the balance of his lifetime time is at stake, and the fight when his life was in the balance as he faced Hun bullets and shells, are interwoven. The defense will attempt to prove that due to the fact he was gassed and, later, knocked senseless by a fragment of a boche shell, Chenoweth's mind was somewhat unbalanced; that the veteran was a victim of emotional insanity when he shot and killed Sydnam.

Chenoweth, returning home from the war, found, he claimed, that his daughter had been betrayed by Sydnam, aged 20. He immediately sought the young man, found him dancing in a public hall, and fired several shots into his body. Chenoweth gave himself up.

Practically all interest, at the opening of the Curry county circuit court here centered on the case.

Money Asked to Aid Fight

(By United Press)

Washington, Sept. 10—Favorable action on the resolution to investigate the influenza danger was predicted by Senator France, Md., chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Health and National Quarantine which has the measure pending.

"I think the committee's action will be favorable," Senator France said, "although I imagine that there will be objection to appropriating $5,000,000 for the purpose as called for in the resolution. It probably will be reported with a smaller amount as that seems a little larger than is needed for a scientific investigation."

Senator France, himself a physician in Baltimore, Md., is fully awake to the need of discovering preventives for the influenza epidemic which swept the country last year taking a grim toll of over one-half million lives. Physicians are agreed that until some way of combating such a menace is found, public health is unsafe and it is the government's duty to aid a thorough study in every way.

Rep. Fess of Ohio, author of the house bill, which provides a $1,500,000 fund for the influenza investigation, said:

"With no influenza in the country today to any degree, Congress is apt to think there is no need for immediate action. But the fact is that all medical authorities agree there is liable to be a repetition of the epidemic which caused ten times more deaths in this country when it recently appeared than the total losses of the American Expeditionary Forces."

"Congress would be guilty of gross neglect if it did not provide for an investigation of the causes of this disease. That is the all important thing we must discover first and it will require a large appropriation to obtain the services of the most noted scientists."

The cure can not be found, medical authorities tell us, until the cause is ascertained and the germ found. That has been the way cures of other diseases, such as yellow fever have been found, after medical authorities were baffled for some time.

Fess, who is one of the Republican leaders, believes little difficulty will be encountered when the bill is finally reported to the House, and he will make every effort to secure for it a place on the legislative calendar so that its enactment will be speedy.

Action should be taken, he believes, before the weather comes that encourages the spread of the disease and this point will be emphasized in one campaign to pass the appropriation.

Prince of Wales in War and Peace

(By United Press)

Longoa (By Mail)—"It doesn't matter if I am killed, I have plenty of brothers at home."

When the Prince of Wales was in France that was always his reply when remonstrated with for taking undue risks. He went on active service at his own request and any idea that during his periods of service in France, Italy, and in Egypt, he was kept in cotton wool would be an error.

Right up to the signing of the Armistice he was never treated as the Prince of Wales, but just as any other officer—any Captain Smith or Brown.

During the retreat from Mons, as he sat at dinner in mess, the telephone rang incessantly, first for this officer, then for that. No orders came for the Prince of Wales. Aching to serve, he seemed to be the only officer the War Office didn't want. At last he went to Kitchener and made a personal appeal.

The great Field Marshal's reply was characteristically blunt: "It won't matter in the least if you are killed, but it won't do if you are taken prisoner; so you can't go."

Later on, despite this assertion, the Prince got his desire and went to France. Out there he ran exactly the same risks as any other officer, and as there are always doubting Thomases who decline to believe that a Prince of royal blood is allowed to run any risks whatsoever, it may be definitely stated that at Verdennes, during the Battle of Loos, the Prince had just got out of his car, when a shell killed his chauffeur and partially wrecked the car. In the autumn of 1917, in a front-line trench, a shell just cleared the Prince and took off the leg of a soldier standing behind him. In Italy, while at dinner, bombs fell outside the window of the mess breaking all the glass. The same thing happened in France when bombs fell immediately outside the hut where the Prince was

One of the Prince's experiences shows an amusing variation from routine. It was on the Somme, in July, 1916, when the Prince with a senior staff officer was going along a duckboard. They heard a shell coming and they dived for shelter. The Prince landed, via a bush, on top of an extremely surprised gunner, who was executing his morning shave. Happily, the man was using a safety razor, and no serious damage was done.

Husbands Are Hoping.

Recently an Irvington woman invited a few of her friends to play cards during the afternoon. There was a strong intimation that the highest score would be rewarded with a prize.
That stimulated interest to a degree.

The women had visions of the ordinary prizes given for card proficiency. One of them thought of a nicely hemmed towel, another saw visions of a cut-glass tumbler, and still another dreamed of something else. There was but one table and as the hostess was barred the contest was wholly between the remaining three. Finally the games were over and the scores tabulated. Then the hostess came in with a big glass of currant jelly and presented it as the prize of the afternoon. She picked the currants in her own garden and had made the jelly herself.

There is hope in the hearts of some Irvington husbands that the fad of giving real food as prizes will grow.

LABOR'S FIRM STAND AGAINST ANARCHY.

By its downright, uncompromising rejection of anarchy and all the sly variants and side issues of anarchy, the American Federation of Labor, in convention at Atlantic City, proved the quality of its Americanism. It did the right thing at the right time, in the convincing way. It is safe to say that organized labor in the United States has never by any one act made itself more sure of the approval and support of the country. A wall has been erected against anarchy on a side where the propagandists hoped to accomplish most. It is for labor to broaden and strengthen that wall until it is impenetrable.—New York Evening World.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON PREDICTS BIG YEAR

Chief Executive of Junior Organization Is Optimistic.

Says Baseball Never Was in Such Condition and Expects to See Attendance Figures Largest Ever Recorded.

Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American league in speaking of the outlook for baseball this season, said that baseball never was in such a good condition. He declared that already the total attendance throughout the league was greater than in 1916 at this time of the year, and that there was every indication that the figures of 1913, baseball's high-water year, would be eclipsed.

"Baseball has come back completely," said Big Ban. "Throughout the entire circuit the crowds have supported the sport in most loyal style, and the good old game is on the road to even greater heights than it reached in the days before the world war. In a statement which I sent out today to the various club owners I said that the attendance figures were already ahead of those at a corresponding time in 1916, which was the second greatest year in American league baseball."

In discussing the plan to send the American and National league pennant winning teams to France to play a series of games at the close of the season, Mr. Johnson said:

"I just thought it would be a great thing for American soldiers, provided there are a lot of them over there next fall, to have two major league champions go over and play a series of games for their benefit."

"Now whether the two champion teams go over depends entirely on the report of conditions by Bill Lange, star National league player 20 years ago, who has been over there investigating. If he thinks such a venture would be cold and uninteresting, it will not be carried out."

EMSLIE IN JAM

Umpire Bob Emslie was the victim of a peculiar play at Cincinnati recently, when a hard throw from Merkle hit him on the wrist and painfully injured him. Daubert had tripped to the score board and Merkle ran out into center field and took Puskert's throw. Jake stopped at third, but Merkle threw toward the plate with all his force.

Umpire Emslie, seeing Daubert stop at third, was backing away into the diamond when the line throw hit him on the left wrist. The injury was so annoying that the game was delayed for several minutes while many of the athletes urged the veteran official to leave his post and let Bill Klem handle the game alone.

Bob, however, refused to do so and remained on the job for the entire afternoon, though his bruised wrist was giving him constant pain. He received the unusual compliment of a round of applause from the fans when it was seen that he was going to stick to his work.

One of Favorite Stunts of Former Pirate Brought to Mind by Play of Hal Chase.

Hal Chase perpetrated a feat in the first game of a recent double-header in Brooklyn that brought to mind one of the favorite stunts practiced by Hans Wagner when the Flying Dutchman was in his prime.

With Zimmerman on first in the eighth inning and Chase at bat, a hit and run play was decided upon. Otto Miller anticipating such a move, called for a pitch out, which Larry Cheney delivered. Had the ball gotten by Chase, Zimmerman, who had darted off first base, would have been trapped, but Chase felled the Robins by throwing his bat at the ball, knocking the pellet into right center for a two-base hit.

Peace Reigns After March to Force
Unionization

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 9.—Peace reigns throughout the coal district in this section of the state, from reports and appearances today, after several days of anxiety and turbulence due to thousands of miners stopping work and taking up the march into Logan county, with the avowed purpose of forcing this non-union field to organize.

The men were brought back from their pilgrimage last night after their organization leaders had pleaded with them to observe the laws of the state.

In the meantime, Governor Cornwell has set foot an investigation in which he summoned the aid of the district mine officials, in an effort to ascertain what the element is that stirred the men to make the march.
